How to Choose the Right Mako Tail

1. Determine Your Purpose

Ask yourself what you'll primarily use the tail for:

- Pool or shallow water: A beginner or mid-range tail is usually sufficient.
- Deep-water swimming: Opt for a performance tail with better buoyancy control.
- Underwater photography or videography: Look for tails with streamlined designs and minimal drag.
- Performances or competitions: A performance tail with enhanced propulsion and durability is essential.

2. Fit and Comfort

Mermaid tails must fit snugly but comfortably. Mako offers a detailed sizing guide based on waist, hips, and inseam measurements. Remember:

1. Measure your waist at the narrowest point.
2. Measure your hips at the widest point.
3. Take your inseam measurement from the crotch to the ankle.

Use the sizing chart to find your exact size. If you're between sizes, Mako typically recommends going up a half size for better flexibility.

3. Material Matters

While most Mako tails use neoprene, there are variations:

- Standard Neoprene: Affordable and durable.

- High-Performance Neoprene: Lightweight, offers better stretch and breathability.
- Silicone Fin: Provides smoother water flow and enhanced propulsion.

Consider your skill level and the water conditions when choosing material.
